LOCAL MEN WILL OPERATE DALY CITY THEATRE

Messrs. Baron and Nathan, who leased the Daly City Theatre upon the completion of that beautiful new playhouse, have disposed of their lease, and the Daly City Theatre will in the future be operated by the Jefferson Theatre Corporation. The members of the corporation are A. L. Stockton, H. H. Smith, R. C. MacArthur and H. Fellows.

Mr. R. C. MacArthur, former manager of the Daly City Branch, Bank of Italy, will be general manager. Mr. Ray Kelsall will continue as resident manager. The other members of the corporation are A. L. Stockton, H. H. Smith and H. Fellows.

Mr. MacArthur announces that on next Monday night a regular talking picture program will be inaugurated, the very latest and best talking equipment having been installed.

The introduction of the talkies for the entertainment of the patrons of the Daly City Theatre is the result of a determination upon the part of the management to give to the people of this section the best entertainment, and the highest class pictures that can be secured. Mr. MacArthur announces that trial performances of the talkies have demonstrated that the Daly City Theatre building is exceptionally well suited for the talkies, and it is expected that from the standpoint of super-production of sound pictures it will have no superior in the district.

With the installation of the speaking pictures at the Daly City Theatre, and the excellent features that are to be provided, it will be unnecessary for residents of this section to go down town to witness the best in sound and motion pictures, as it is the intention of the management of the Daly City Theatre to present shows that will measure up at all times to the requirements of a discriminating public.

PRETTY WEDDING CEREMONY AT ST. MAXIMUS CHURCH

Miss Thelma Temple, of Templeton avenue, and William Gregoire, of Peoria street, were united in marriage last Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at St. Maximus church, Rev. Father James Donohoe performing the ceremony.

The bride was prettily gowned in white satin with flounces of wide lace. She carried a band of orange blossoms in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Louise Grandona, sister of the groom, was the matron of honor. She wore a gown of canary yellow satin, with wide flounces of lace, and carried yellow tea roses.

Raymond Grandona was the groom's best man.

After the ceremony a wedding supper for the immediate family was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Grandona, of Magnolia avenue, South San Francisco, which was followed by a reception.

After a honeymoon trip the young couple will make their home in South San Francisco.

CHANGE MEETING TIME IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Beginning Sunday evening, November 1, Grace Presbyterian church announces that the evening meeting will commence at 7:45 p. m. instead of 8 as heretofore. The young people's meeting will also commence 15 minutes earlier.

A Halloween party is scheduled for Friday evening by the young people, so that Halloween is going to be continued one day longer to suit Grace church. Young people are invited to attend.

The pastor will speak on "Gifts" next Sunday evening. Which would you rather? Give a gift or receive a gift? The Bible is always different. It says it is always better to give than to receive.

RALLY DAY PROGRAM SUNDAY AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

The Sunday school of the Daly City Methodist church will hold its Rally Day program next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, at the church, corner of Vista Grande and Santa Barbara. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Epworth League at 6:30 p. m. Church services at 7:30 p. m. REV. L. D. COOK, Pastor.

BUILDING PERMITS

City Clerk B. C. Ross reports the recent issuance of the following building permits:

Loyal Ingersoll, 141 Los Banos avenue, alterations.

San Castro, 6098 Mission street, oil station.

Rosalie Vasquez, 230 Los Banos avenue, one room addition.

DALY CITY HOMES GET NATURAL GAS

An army of men invaded Daly City last Monday morning, causing no end of comment on the part of those who had not been informed of the probability of their arrival. But it was a peaceful, orderly army, the majority being young men clad in jumpers carrying the insignia of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

We might add that there has been but a slight reduction in the force up to the time we go to press, and the different restaurants and places of amusement and entertainment have enjoyed a greatly increased patronage as a result of the invasion.

The coming of this army of workmen was the result of the introduction of natural gas to the residents of Daly City. October 28 was the date set by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for the installation of natural gas in the homes in this section, and an army of trained experts was on hand to adjust gas burning equipment and advise the users as to the proper care and use of all gas consuming equipment.

One of the gas utilization men, carrying the proper credentials, was expected to call at each home and place of business where gas is used and make minor adjustments to gas burning equipment without cost to the user.

The general verdict seems to be that the natural gas is an improvement over the manufactured product.

CROCKER P. T. A. REPRESENTED AT THE DISTRICT MEETING

The Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association was represented by six of its members at the last meeting of the Seventeenth district, held in San Mateo, on Friday October 18. Mrs. Ethel Bolger very charmingly assisted as hostess for the day.

The regular monthly meeting of Crocker P. T. A. was held on Wednesday of last week at Company No. 5 fire house on Bellevue avenue. Mrs. Lohr, school nurse, was the speaker for the day, speaking on Clinics and the need for same in Daly City. She also spoke on the marvelous work being conducted by the Preventorium in San Mateo, and urged the members to lend their support.

J. E. A. Miller gave a brief talk on the water conditions of the county. It was decided to give a check to the Crocker school to buy books to add to their library.

After the business of the day the meeting adjourned and the members enjoyed tasty home made doughnuts and coffee which was the donation of "The Lucky Spot," 6072 Mission street.

Three new members were added to the fast growing list, Mrs. M. McKee, Mrs. S. Ellison and Mrs. A. Denahy being welcomed.

Last Friday night the Halloween jamboree was held at Masonic Hall. Mrs. Ivy Alexander, president, wishes to take this opportunity to thank all officers, members and friends who gave so generously of their time and effort to make the affair a success.

Last Saturday the pupils of Miss Johnson's class enjoyed a tour of San Francisco in the school car of the Market Street Railway Company. The children report having had a lovely trip.

The next meeting of Crocker P. T. A. will be held on Wednesday, November 20. A speaker from the Hostess Cake Co. will be present. Mark this date on your calendar and plan to be present.

ENTERTAINS MEMBERS OF P. T. A. SEWING CLUB

Mrs. J. E. Fafford, of San Diego avenue, entertained the members of the sewing club of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association at her home last Tuesday. The ladies spent a delightful afternoon sewing, after which tempting refreshments were served by the hostess to the following members: Mrs. C. Page, Mrs. L. Light, Mrs. E. E. Foss, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. F. Rickmann, Mrs. H. Hutchings, Mrs. Woodside, Mrs. T. A. Heaton, Mrs. H. F. Secor, Mrs. T. E. Stevens, Mrs. C. Denk, and Mrs. L. Nelson. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Page, of San Diego avenue.

LOYALTY CRUSADE POPULAR AT CALVARY BAPTIST MISSION

A marked increase in attendance and interest has been noticed since the beginning of the Church Loyalty Crusade, at Calvary Baptist Mission. Every member seems anxious to help, and this spirit is sure to bring splendid results.

Next Sunday is "Symphony Day," with "Old Hymns" night. The public is invited to share the special musical numbers and join in singing the glorious old hymns of the church. The sermon will be "What We Believe," set to music.

Good Morning

CHIMES INSTALLED IN LOCAL CHURCH

The Catholic church and parish of Daly City, formerly under the patronage of St. Maximus, will be known henceforth as the church and parish of "Our Lady of Perpetual Help. An Archconfraternity of Our Lady is in existence within the parish with a membership of 2,700, and meets regularly on the first Sunday evening of the month.

Many changes and improvements are being made in the church. The interior decoration begun some time ago will be completed in a few weeks time. But the greatest addition of all is the installation of a set of chimes in the tower of the church, which will give the entire district the correct time every hour of the day, and at stated intervals concerts will be given that will reach the homes and hearts of all the people of Daly City.

The writer is at a disadvantage in describing these chimes, as they are something entirely new and have to be seen and heard to be appreciated. These chimes are more in the nature of a civic than a religious improvement to our city.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT COSTUME PARTY

The Daly City Camp Fire Girls entertained a large group of friends last Wednesday evening at a costume Halloween party, given at Company No. 5 fire house on Bellevue avenue.

The girls spent a delightful evening playing games, after which tempting refreshments were served. The hall and table were beautifully decorated in Halloween colors and favors. The evening will long be remembered by the following girls: Irene Twisten, Helen Waite, Catherine Aiello, Mattie Witte, Rose Moran, Florence Christen, Helen Knoll, Eleanor Bodien, Louise Nittel, Laveta Hicks, Gladys Oakley, Irene Malakowski, Frances Walt, Karma Bassett, Myrtle Augustien, Mildred Mansfelt, Jessie Augustien, Mary Swan, Lillian Crawford, Elsie Bodeker, Dorothy Eldrup, Gladys Eldup, Helen Reinhart, Ruth Smith, Theresa Compagni, Charlotte Godfrey, Marion Mansfelt, Mary Phelan, Miss Katherine McKeown, the guardian, and the official escort, Andrew McKeown.

LITTLE MISS IS HONOR GUEST ON HER TENTH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. H. Cliver, of San Diego avenue, entertained at a children's party last Tuesday afternoon in honor of Lorraine Bacigalupi, who celebrated her tenth birthday. The table was tastefully decorated in pink crepe paper and each guest received a pretty paper doll. The birthday cake, with the name of each guest written on the top with frosting, greatly amused the children and was very attractive. Lorraine received many lovely gifts from her little friends. The afternoon was spent in playing games, after which dainty refreshments were served to the following: Rose Jelcie, Lorraine Heim, Eva Trotman, Elaine Hanson, Jeannette Barger, Audrey Teal, Alma Harper, John Harper, Melvin Hanson and Edward Ricketts.

B. Y. P. U.

Lest you forget and you be one whose lot it is to regret—the B. Y. P. U. of Calvary Baptist church, at 5724 Mission street, is telling you that there will be a program of work by the Young People, and you are wanted there at 7 p. m.

If you were interested enough to read the above paragraph, you will want to know some more about the program. The topic will be "Making Our Bodies a Fit Temple for God." You will enjoy the penny song service

LOCAL EAGLES PUT ON FINE PROGRAM

Thirty-four candidates were initiated into the local Aerie at the Eagles' Hall on Thursday evening of last week at a meeting-banquet. More than one hundred members attended the ceremony, which was the best attended in recent months.

After the initiation a program of varied entertainment was presented for the new Eagles and full-fledged members.

An unusual and decidedly interesting feature of the evening was the three wrestling matches put on by young men of the San Francisco Y. M. C. A. In the first tilt, Erich Diebel, lightweight "Y" champion, and Enrico D. Agostini fought to a five minute draw. The seven minute match between Ross Smith and Alvan Ellis was declared a draw. Erich Diebel and Ross Smith then wrestled to a draw in another seven minute bout. Although the time allotted was short, these young men gave an interesting and amusing exhibition of amateur wrestling. In order to show their appreciation, the Aerie presented the mat fighters with pens and eversharp pencils. H. Hyulmand refereed all of the bouts.

Miss Nahl presented some accordion selections, which were followed by John Dell, of Dell's orchestra. After this Dr. Prince, of Aerie No. 5, played the piano and rendered several songs. Mr. Foss also sang. The musical part of the program was followed by addresses by the politically prominent men of the lodge and community.

Following the program a delightful banquet was served.

Gold diamond pins are being given to the members getting fifteen or more candidates. W. E. Merritt and William Ottoboni were recent victors.

GARBAGE LAW VIOLATORS SHOULD BE REPORTED

Chief of Police Doyle wishes to draw attention to a statement made recently by Dr. William C. Hassler, city health officer of San Francisco, in the arguments that occurred before the committee on the violations of the law by citizens of San Francisco dumping and throwing garbage and refuse into vacant lots. Dr. Hassler said that if the public would co-operate with the health and police departments and the police judges of our courts, there is no doubt that the practice would soon cease, but neither one alone could stop the practice.

Chief Doyle feels that the same condition exists in Daly City. It is unlawful to dump garbage and refuse on vacant lots and roadways, and any one violating this law should be reported to the police department.

PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC DENIED NEW HEARING

Municipal distribution of Hetch Hetchy power in San Francisco came a step nearer last Tuesday when the Railroad Commission denied the application of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for a rehearing on the valuation proceedings. The commission had previously set $28,500,000 as the value of the company's distributing system in San Francisco, needed by the city for the Hetch Hetchy power, against a valuation of $60,000,000 claimed by the company.

and the special musical numbers, by our members. The slogan for November is "B. Y. P. U. is Cheerful," and you will find it is, because it is managed by young folks who have a keen insight on the Christian life. We have set a goal of fifty-seven for attendance. The first three Sundays of the Crusade we topped fifty. Come and see these young folks, who are heart and soul for making their Union full of life.

COUNCIL ADOPTS MEAT ORDINANCE

At the regular meeting of the City Council last Monday evening, all the members answering roll call and Mayor H. H. Smith presiding, a communication was received from Postmaster Todd, acknowledging receipt of a letter from the board asking for a mail box to be placed at Citrus avenue and Woodrow street, for the accommodation of the residents of that section of the city. Postmaster Todd said that after the regular form of investigation, the Council would be notified as to the granting of the request. He announced that it was the desire of the Postal Department to render every possible convenience for the mailing of letters and packages, and if the above mentioned request is consistent with collection schedules, the mail box will be established as requested.

An ordinance regulating the sale of uncooked and uncooked meats was adopted.

The ordinance committee reported progress on the plan of zoning the district south of the high school; also on the establishing of set-back lines in that district.

The League of California Municipalities sent in a communication advising that the last convention, held in Oakland, was the best in the history of the League. As a consequence the delegates ordered the entire proceedings of the convention to be published in one volume and distributed to the various cities at cost.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company asked permission to set a pole, to provide for two head guys, at Hillcrest and San Pedro avenue. The request was referred to the street committee.

A letter was received from Charles M. Shoup, drawing the Council's attention to the condition of streets west of Mission street. This matter was referred to the street committee.

The library committee reported a donation of valuable books to the library, the annual gift of Mrs. John D. Daly, in memory of the birthday of the late John D. Daly. The City Clerk was instructed to write her a letter of appreciation.

The water committee reported a survey having been made of the land necessary for a new reservoir for additional water storage, and the clerk was instructed to communicate with the Crocker Estate Company, asking for a price on the same.

The Burlingame Garden and Flower Club communicated with the Council and recommended that the chrysanthemum, because of its prominence, be adopted as the official flower of the county. The board looked favorably on this request and passed a resolution on same.

The Council thanked the residents of Daly City who participated in the parade at the opening of the Bayshore highway for the splendid showing they made.

SOUTH CITY STOCK SHOW NOVEMBER 9-13

The most prominent and outstanding judges of live stock in the United States will place the ribbons on the prize winning stock at the second annual California Livestock and Baby Beef Show, to be held at the Union Stockyards, South San Francisco, November 9-13, according to announcement of E. W. Stephens, show manager.

J. C. Duncan, of Lewiston, N. Y., nationally known judge of fat lambs and who has for many years officiated as judge of fat lambs at the Chicago International Livestock Exposition, will judge individual and carloads of lambs at the California show.

C. W. Hickman, of Moscow, Idaho, a veteran of the show ring, will judge individual cattle, while James Brown, of Beverly Hills, California, prominent livestockman and formerly head cattle buyer for Armour and Company, at Chicago, will judge carloads of cattle.

E. W. Hughes, of the University of California, who is recognized as the outstanding judge of hogs in the west, will officiate as judge of individual and carloads of hogs.

The second annual California Livestock and Baby Beef Show will attract the choicest array of livestock ever assembled at one point in the west, and the task of the judges will not be an easy one when it comes to placing the championship ribbons.

One hundred boys and girls in California and Nevada are now putting the finishing touches on their carefully selected baby beef, lambs and hogs, which they will exhibit at the South San Francisco show.

The show management is making elaborate preparations to take care of the large attendance expected at the show, and the show and sale rings is being enlarged to accommodate the many interested spectators who will watch their favorite breed representations compete for show honors.

MOTHERS TO VISIT GRAVES IN EUROPE

Congressman A. M. Free of the Eighth Congressional district of California is making arrangements for the pilgrimage of the mothers and widows of the California World War veterans who are buried in the cemeteries of Europe. According to announcement from his office, Congressman Free has turned over the entire facilities of his Washington office to the mothers and widows of California World War veterans residing in his district for the purpose of taking care of the necessary details in connection with the pilgrimage.

Under a act passed during the 70th Congress, mothers and widows of members of the military naval forces of the United States who died in the military or naval service at any time between April 5, 1917, and July 1, 1921, and whose remains are now interred in foreign cemeteries, are entitled to make a pilgrimage to the graves of the veterans. All expenses in connection with the trip will be paid by the government. These pilgrimages may be made at such times between May 1, 1930, and October 31, 1933, as may be designated by the Secretary of War. Persons eligible for the trip are widows who have not remarried since the death of the member of the military or naval forces, and mothers of veterans, step-mothers, mothers through adoption, or any woman who stood in loco parentis to the deceased member of the military or naval forces for the year prior to commencement of his services in such forces.

Suitable transportation, accommodations, meals and other necessities pertaining thereto, as prescribed by the Secretary of War, shall be furnished each mother or widow included in any pilgrimage for the entire distance at sea and on land, while sojourning in Europe, and while en route in the United States from home to port and from port to home. Cabin-class accommodations shall be furnished for all transportation at sea.

Congressman Free is very anxious that all mothers and widows of veterans buried in foreign cemeteries communicate with his Washington office, if they are interested in making this pilgrimage. He will be glad to co-operate in any way possible in order that the trip may be arranged for their convenience. Pilgrimages will not begin until next year, but it is very important that plans in this connection be completed as quickly as possible.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SPUR LINE HEARING ENDED

After numerous hearings, in which the State Highway Commission and the Western Pacific Railroad attacked the "orphan" spur track of the Southern Pacific, south of San Mateo, the State Railroad Commission completed its investigation into the matter last Tuesday.

The track, traversing the right of way of the Bay Shore Highway and crossing over barren lands, was defended by W. K. Kirkbride, engineer of the Southern Pacific maintenance of way department.

He denied that it was laid "in the dark of the night," as has been charged, and asserted that plans for the track were drawn in 1926. In attacking the spur, witnesses for the highway commission alleged that the company was attempting to "beat the commission to it," and thus throw the burden of a grade separation at the point on the commission.

Commissioner Decoto took the matter under advisement, after requesting the Southern Pacific and the highway commission to submit evidence concerning priority at the intersection of highway and spur.

TEN MILLIONS FROM GAS TAX IN 90 DAYS

California's 3-cent gasoline tax returned the state $9,933,237.57 during the last three months, according to a statement by Dixwell L. Pierce, secretary of the State Board of Equalization.

The amount represents taxes collected on 334,418,767 gallons of gasoline. It is the largest sum yet collected in any three months by this tax, which was inaugurated in 1924. The sales exceed the gallonage reported for the same quarter in 1928, by 16.15 per cent.

An estimate today from the tax of $36,546,000 for 1929 was set by Pierce, all of which will be available for highway construction and maintenance.

Boxing, Wrestling Net State $124,000

State Athletic Commission receipts from California boxing and wrestling totaled $124,247.44 thus far this year, as compared with $93,904.04 for the corresponding period of 1928. There have been 828 fight shows in the state this year, as against 753 at a comparable date last year.

Carrying ten sharpened knives of various sizes in his pockets Mose Gray, aged 29, of Atlantic City, N. J., was badly cut about the body when struck by an automobile.

Walter Morton, aged 8, of Elgin, Ill., has fallen from a roof and been struck by a street car and automobile but never has been seriously hurt.

As an Irishman would say, Mr. Shearer appears to be the life of the party.

ABOUT WOMEN

Miss Grace Runyon of Cheyenne, Wyoming, who has won the title of world's champion cow-girl four times, is declared to be one of the greatest woman riders the West has ever known.

Mrs. L. G. Williams of Salisbury, N. C., who was married at the age of 13, is a grandmother at 29.

Mrs. H. C. McLeod and Mrs. William Aitken, sisters, who have been living in widely separated parts of Canada, recently met in Winnipeg for the first time in 35 years.

Miss Helen Fernald of the University museum, Philadelphia, is making a five-month tour of China to collect interesting oriental art objects.

Mrs. Genevieve Boughner, who has written a book, "Women in Journalism," has joined the Kansas State Agricultural College as assistant professor of industrial journalism.

Miss Margaret Bennett of Pittsburgh successfully operates a coal mine and a large sawmill.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Raymond Olive, 9-year-old farm boy living near Florence, Ala., picked 213 pounds of cotton in one day from a very poor yield, which caused him to cover nearly four acres during his day's work.

Forest Hausman, aged 11, of Storm Lake, Ia., has been given a house and lot by Joseph Keller, in appreciation of the boy's many acts of kindness.

Marjory Hayden, aged 16, of Winchester, Mass., is said to be the youngest carillon player in the United States.

Robert Akers, aged 9, son of a Kentucky college president, is a mathematical genius who has amazed his teachers. He will shortly address the legislature on astronomy at its fall session.

SIDELIGHTS

L. H. Freedman of Chicago started out to be a philanthropist but wound up as a rather poor sport. Some time ago he announced that two months free rent would be given the parents of each baby born in his apartment house. Ten were born in six months and Freedman balked. One father sued, but lost his suit, the judge holding that the offer, made verbally, was not binding on Freedman.

Everett Smith, a negro of Ashbury Park, N. J., will probably confine his wisecracking to his own social circle in future. When a traffic cop admonished him Smith asked: "Well, buddy, did you go to West Point or Annapolis?" And was fined $20 for disorderly conduct.

Dr. Norris, New York's chief medical examiner, estimates that one-fourth of the pedestrians injured by automobiles are intoxicated at the time. A wag suggests that this proves that one is in three times as much danger when sober.

No matter what one's calling may be, if he becomes an expert the lecture field is open. Reformed safecrackers and pickpockets are to lecture at a school of police administration conducted by Chicago University.

"The goose that lays the golden egg" may be a myth, but the ostrich that produces diamonds is not, according to a dispatch from Cape Town, Africa. Two ostriches killed near there were found to have 70 diamonds in their crops, and the discovery may lead to the finding of new diamond deposits in the vicinity.

Taxicab drivers may not be noted for excessive intelligence, but one in New York recently did some straight and rapid thinking which with the aid of a box of toothpicks saved 30 lives. Seeing an apartment house on fire at night, he rushed from door to door, inserting the toothpicks in doorbell pushbuttons, thus causing the bells to ring continuously until the occupants were awakened, and all escaped.

Through some peculiar mental twist Archibald Shandler of Masefield, Sask., has formed the idea that the world will come to an end on November 6, and with his wife and brother has proceeded to the top of a hill to await the fateful day. He is likely to be disappointed, as hundreds of others with a similar obsession have been disappointed in the past.

Dare devil stunts which endanger the lives of the public are a great nuisance, but there appears to be no way to eliminate them. Rudy Cimino recently fell to his death in Chicago while sliding down a rope from the 45th floor of the new Civic Opera building. Several spectators were injured, one probably fatally. All for a few feet of movie film.

Four persons were painfully but not seriously hurt when a truck and an automobile collided near Brockville, O., both vehicles being thrown into the ditch. It might have been worse if any of the 50 cases of dynamite with which the truck was loaded had happened to explode.

At the sound of a fire alarm 65 blind inmates of a New York institution marched from the seventh floor to the street in perfect order in one minute and 40 seconds. No damage of any kind was done, it being only a fire drill.

The Rev. W. C. Treat, pastor of the Atonement church in Westfield, Mass., perhaps got a big kick out of his summer vacation as the next one. He spent it on a cruise to Honduras and back, not as a passenger, but as an able seaman.

That a former jail-bird has sympathy for imprisoned creatures was illustrated by a St. Louis burglar a few nights ago. He took $160 from the home of Sam Zumbo and before leaving released the pet canary from its cage.

An undertaker of Atchison, Kan., lost a job a few days ago by examining a "corpse" too closely. The body of Chester Cahoon, victim of carbon monoxide gas, was being prepared for burial when the undertaker thought he noticed signs of life. Firemen with a pulmotor brought Cahoon to consciousness and the funeral was indefinitely postponed.

As a vamp who gets her men, Mme. Adrienne Guyot of Brussels appears to be in a class by herself. Although not quite forty years old, she has confessed to having had 682 sweethearts, 50 of whom she married. Her batting average was approximately two sweethearts a month and two husbands a year.

One of the meanest tricks on record is charged against Leo Cymes, who until recently operated a storage place for furs in New York. He skipped out after pawning all the fur coats left in his charge and sending the pawn tickets to his 233 women customers. Cymes is thought to have left the city with his pretty blond assistant.

HIGHWAY SAFETY SLOGAN ADOPTED

"A preventable accident is more than an accident, it is a crime."

The Safety Conference of the California State Chamber of Commerce has adopted the above slogan to intensify its state-wide street and highway safety campaign.

The first application of the slogan, it is announced, will be in connection with RIGHT OF WAY, to be stressed in public education and law enforcement during the month of November.

Fifty per cent of the automobile accidents and the resulting fatalities occur at intersections. At the present rate of deaths in California, approximately 5 per day resulting from automobile accidents, more than 2,000 men, women and children will have been killed by January 1, 1930. If the danger of the intersection were realized by automobile drivers, this tremendous death toll could be reduced by one-half.

The law prescribes the proper approach and crossing of an intersection, but the law cannot guarantee the necessary obedience to make intersections safe. This vital factor lies wholly in the hands of the motoring public. If the drivers of automobiles become safety conscious, and if they enter into the spirit of care and courtesy, the toll of death would immediately be reduced.

With very few exceptions accidents at intersections are needless. Confronted as we are by this havoc of needless deaths and disaster, we are forced to the conclusion, in analyzing the number of accidents at intersections, that these preventable accidents are more than accidents, they constitute crimes.

The law states: "The driver of a vehicle approaching an intersection shall yield the right of way to a vehicle which has entered the intersection. When two vehicles enter an intersection at the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left shall yield to the driver on the right."

The Safety Conference is appealing to every individual driver in the state of California to support this law and to give as their share to this campaign particular care and courtesy at intersections.

SIR HARRY LAUDER COMING TO THE CURRAN THEATRE

Sir Harry Lauder, associated with what is declared to be the greatest company of international entertainers ever offered in conjunction with this world-famous singing comedian, comes to the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, for a week, opening on Monday, November 4. In order to accommodate the crowds that are always drawn by this noted Scot, there will be three popular priced matinees—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—in addition to the regular Saturday matinee.

Sir Harry Lauder is always assured of a cordial welcome whenever and wherever he appears, but interest is accentuated this season owing to the fact that several years have elapsed since his last Pacific tour, and since that time he has literally sung his way around the world. His present tour of the United States and Canada will extend from coast to coast and cover a period of thirty-four weeks.

A louder engagement is always a riot of mirth and melody, and this season is proving no exception to the rule. The little comedian has revived a number of his old songs—the kind that his audience always insistently demand—but there are also numerous new offerings that are credited with being equal to anything he has ever created in the past. Among the new ones, "Just Got Off the Chain," "When I Meet MacKay," and "The End of the Road" are finding especial favor. The revivals include the perennially popular "Roamin' in th' Gloamin'," "Waggle o' th' Kilt," and "I Love a Lassie."

With Sir Harry on the program are the noted Persian pianist, Kharum; the Brothers Arnaut in their laughable sketch, "Two Loving Birds"; Elmira Lane, coloratura soprano; Don Julian, clever Australian caricaturist, imported by Sir Harry for his American tour, and the Calagaris Duo, a European novelty.

Seats may be secured by mail, enclosing check and indicating price and location desired, or at the Curran box office.

GREATEST THING IN LIFE

What is it? To stick around? To be useful? To do one's duty? Yes, first and foremost to those who are dependent on you—your immediate family. It is not their fault that you are related to them. Your duty to them is performed, you may develop yourself as an individual. Your personality, your individuality are next in importance.

Is it not in a national sense highly important that we formulate a national philosophy founded on the efficient individual and service for the masses?

The concept of Americans by the Europeans, that we are a nation of men and women who are mere dollar-chasers, is a mistaken one. We have amassed the most dollars because we have made wealth a by-product of principal, not putting dollar-worship first.

The principle of service, better service, more service, has become the greatest thing in life with American industrial leaders.

Men who have made millions are generally plain and common as old shoes.

Jack Jarboe, employed in a restaurant in Santa Cruz, California, is through washing dishes since discovering that he had fallen heir to a $30,000 fortune from his aunt, Katherine Bull, New York City writer.

It appears that the Senate will celebrate several Navy Days this year.

It can not be denied that the liquor problem is staggering.

U. S. COURT DOCKETS SWAMPED WITH CASES

There were 149,033 cases pending in the eighty-eight district courts of the United States June 30, according to a report of the condition of the dockets in these courts made at the conference of the senior judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, held recently. Because of the immense volume of litigation that comes into these courts, it was shown that many of their dockets are gorged with cases awaiting disposition. The report showed 25,263 cases in which no action had been taken though the cases have been pending for a year or more.

The classification of pending cases as given by the report does not indicate that either prohibition or the crime wave is chiefly responsible for the burden of the dockets. They are classed as follows: Bankruptcy cases 58,870; private suits 37,546; criminal prosecutions 31,500; and United States civil suits 21,185. It is obvious that some drastic steps are needed to remedy a situation that arises because of these overburdened dockets.

For Best Results in Home Dyeing

You can always give richer, deeper, more brilliant colors to faded or out-of-style dresses, hose, coats, draperies, etc., with Diamond Dyes. And the colors stay in through wear and washing!

Here's the reason. Diamond Dyes contain the highest quality anilines money can buy. And it's the anilines that count! They are the very life of dyes.

Plenty of pure anilines make Diamond Dyes easy to use. They go on evenly without spotting or streaking. Try them next time and see why authorities recommend them; why millions of women will use no other dyes.

You get Diamond Dyes for the same price as ordinary dyes; 15c. at any drug store.

Tigers Spread Terror in Chinese Districts

Reading like the pages from some highly spiced jungle tale are the complaints made by villages to the north of the coastal city of Swatow. Ten Chinese have been eaten or badly mauled and one small girl knocked down and injured by man-eating tigers in the thickly populated districts of the province. Tigers have been attacking in the daytime as well as at night, and measures to cope with the menace are being considered. Among these is a proposal that whole villages be organized to take up a trail. One tiger weighing 100 pounds was killed recently near Thongkhlang. Man-eating tigers have long been known to inhabit this area, but this is the first time they have become so bold as to be a menace to hundreds of villages.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All drugstores have it.

Poor Painter

When Sir Austen Chamberlain was in Hollywood a pretty girl said to him at tea:
"Is it true, Sir Austen, that your colleague in the cabinet, Winston Churchill, goes in for art?"
"Churchill does dabble in oils," said Sir Austen—"landscapes, still life, that sort of thing."
"Is he any good?" the girl asked.
Sir Austen put his monocle in his eye.
"Well," he said, "he's not as bad as he has painted."

Engineering Feat

Moving a hill from the heart of a city, carrying it over streets without interfering with traffic, and dumping it on barges that turn turtle to empty themselves, is an interesting engineering task in progress at Seattle, Wash., says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The project involves the handling of approximately 4,500,000 cubic yards of earth and transporting it more than a mile to the bottom of Elliott bay.

A deafening report followed by a gun. The circus hands ran from all directions. Had a tent stay snapped or a cage fallen over? Perhaps some one had been shot. A crowd quickly gathered in a far corner of the tent. A form lay prostrate and silent on the ground. The India rubber man had had a blowout.

Bad Year for City Slickers, Says Rogers

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Say, our champion New York university team looked like Man o' War till that bunch of Oregon apple knockers got a hold of 'em this afternoon. It was no place for a raccoon coat athlete, up against an old bunch of wheat shockers whose college emblem is a pair of Levi overalls.

These old salmon giggers from the mouth of the Columbia had the city slickers strewn from goal to goal.

With Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia and Al Smith going down all in succession, it just looks like it's the old country boys' year.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The attendance at Oakdale Union School broke all past records this term, with an enrollment of 665. The best attendance in any previous day last year was 658.

The first case of granting aid to the blind under the new state law has been accomplished by Butte County Supervisors. They awarded Mrs. Mary F. Johnston of Chico $15 a month as a needy blind person.

Construction has been started on the new school in Picnic Valley, near San Rafael. The school was formally named Laurel Dell by the Board of Education.

There were 402 visitors to the top of Mt. Whitney, highest mountain in the United States, during the year ending September 30. This number appears in names in the Sierra Club register at the top of this most difficult climb.

A petition signed by the property owners in the Cascades at Fairfax asking for improvement of streets in that tract was accepted by the Board of Supervisors.

Pilot Johnny Johnston, who carries the airmail from San Jose to Oakland nightly, has carried a total of 6783 pounds of mail during the last year.

New fire fighting equipment for the town of San Anselmo, including a modern pumper, is assured as a result of the recent $30,000 bond election.

The recent perilous trip made down from Fenner's Crossing to Redding, 60 miles, by James E. Carney and three companions, has attracted the attention of the movies. Under commission from a moving picture company Carney has just completed a boat of the bateau type that will carry 16 persons. The first boat carried only 12. The two boats will be utilized in moving picture stunts.

Members of Golden Gate Chapter, American War Mothers, visited the Veterans' Hospital at Livermore on the occasion of the dedication of a sequoia tree that had been previously planted and marked by the chapter. Doctor Brewer, chief of the medical staff, opened the dedication ceremonies. The ritual of the dedication was carried out by the presiding officer, Mrs. Mary Agnes Appel, and officers. The ceremonies closed with a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. E. A. Bagot.

Curtailment of fishing and boating in Vallejo's three lake reservoirs, Curry, Madigan and Frey, is expected to be ordered by the City Council. This will be in conformity with recommendations made by J. D. DeCosta, Oakland sanitary engineer, who has been employed by the council to make an exhaustive investigation of the water system.

California's heavy tribute to incineration was revealed with announcement that fire losses to date in state protected areas total $590,706.55. Range losses, to which the firebug contributed heavily, totaled $205,882.48 and were topped only by destruction of farm property and other improvements aggregating $248,869.75, according to Deputy State Forester W. B. Rider. Timber losses, Rider said, were comparatively low, damage of $96,382.12 being materially under those of last year. Destruction of grain, amounting this season to $38,561.70, also was well under the 1928 total.

The San Joaquin Light and Power Company must pay $61,396.23 for power in excess of 25,000 kilowatts contracted for in 1927 with the Merced Irrigation District, the Third District Court of Appeals held sustaining a Merced Superior Court opinion. The district sued the corporation after it had demurred on grounds that its contract called for a specified output of energy and not the actual wattage delivered.

The all-year highway from Merced into Yosemite Valley will receive practically all the travel from now on through the winter, as unsettled weather conditions and construction on the Wawona and Big Oak Flat roads make travel over them inadvisable. The all-year road affords splendid traveling conditions throughout, and the trip from Merced, a distance of 88 miles, may be made easily in from two and one half to three hours' driving. It is high gear road all the way, and is at all points wide enough for traffic to pass in complete comfort. Camps and resorts along the way afford desirable overnight stopping places.

Application for water rights on Cache Creek, Yolo County, in an estimated $12,000,000 industrial water supply project, which would turn Capay Valley territory into an artificial lake, was announced at the State Division of Water Resources. The enterprise, as indicated to the State division, contemplates serving water by a pipe system to Vacaville, Suisun, Fairfield and Martinez, and Carquinez straits area. The project includes plans for power development as a by-product.

Callito Investment Corporation which controls the Bank of Courtland, has given official intimation that the bank's capitalization may be increased. W. C. Keener has been elected president. The bank will continue to operate independently.

Earl Hayes, Exeter aviator, is, perhaps, the first California flyer to be haled to court for violation of Federal regulations against flying an obsolete and unsafe ship. His own friends swore to the complaint to force him to stay on the ground or get a ship in which there was less danger of his death.

SEEKING SERVICE GAME AT CHICAGO

Congressman Britten Urges Contest for Dec. 6.

Despite reports from West Point that Army could not meet Navy on the gridiron this season because of the heavy schedule, Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago is determined to continue his negotiations to bring about a renewal of the football relations between the service schools.

Mr. Britten planned to confer with President Hoover again and urge upon the commander-in-chief of the army and navy that the traditional contest between the two academies be resumed.

His plan calls for the appointment of a prominent director of athletics in some university to confer with Secretary of War Good and Secretary of Navy Adams to draw up eligibility rules for the schools so that they could play a post-season game December 6 of this year at Chicago.

It seems that one of the most difficult problems of football officiating is detecting the use of the tubed "screen pass" and its variations. The rules have been made more stringent and clarified on this feature of the aerial game for the 1929 season, but it is understood that the rules-makers were obliged to call in a half dozen of the leading coaches and appeal for co-operation in removing the illegal screen plays.

In effect, the coaches summoned, all famous, replied: "We will be glad to co-operate, scrupulously avoiding any endeavor to circumvent the screen pass rule, if officials will be eagle-eyed in preventing the other fellows from getting away with it. We will play the game the way you want it, providing we have the proper protection."

Tulane university has Billy Banker, the great blond flash, as captain and leader this year. Banker, a Lake Charles, La., boy, gained national recognition last year by being one of the leading point scorers in the country. His play at halfback won for him the unanimous choice for the all-Southern team.

Because the Athletics won the world's series Forrest F. Cole of Dallas, Texas, must knock flies all the way to Shibe park, Philadelphia. Ernest Luttrell, his betting opponent, will accompany him, furnishing a fungo bat and balls. They hope to be in Philadelphia by February 1.

Newspaper men on the Pacific coast blame "internal dissension," that old bugaboo which was the bane of the Pittsburgh Pirates last year, for the defeat and tie which were marked up against the strong Stanford football team last season. On their way east for the Army game, half of Pop Warner's gridders wouldn't speak with the other faction, is the report. But all is mended this year.

Earle Neale played professional baseball and college football at the same time. He was then a student at West Virginia Wesleyan and there was no rule against summer baseball.

The Reading club, a Cub farm, didn't develop any stars for the parent organization this year. Last year Reading sent Harry Seibold, a rejuvenated veteran, to the Cubs and he was traded to the Braves in the deal for Rogers Hornsby.

The only strategy we can suggest in connection with the playing of football at night would be to start a half-back off with the ball and turn off the lights.

The Chicago Cubs suffered some hardships at the hands of the Athletics on the ball field but they could hardly ask for better treatment off the diamond.

A special chef with two assistants cooked for the National league champions during their stay in Philadelphia. They occupied one entire floor of their hotel with a private dining room among the accommodations, a private elevator to carry them to their rooms, and a gymnasium and radio among other comforts of home.

University of California executive committee voted against installing the loud speaker system in the Memorial stadium at Berkeley where the football games are staged.

Needless Suffering

The next time a headache makes you stay at home—

Or some other ache or pain prevents your keeping an engagement—

Remember Bayer Aspirin! For there is scarcely any pain it cannot relieve, and relieve promptly.

These tablets give real relief, or millions would not continue to take them. They are quite harmless, or the medical profession would not constantly prescribe them.

Don't be a martyr to unnecessary pain. To colds that might so easily be checked; to neuritis, neuralgia; to those pains peculiar to women; or any suffering for which Bayer Aspirin is such an effective antidote.

For your own protection, buy the genuine. Bayer is safe. It's always the same. It never depresses the heart, so use it as often as needed; but the cause of any pain can be treated only by a doctor.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so. You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

EDISON'S JUBILEE

Climaxing a series of celebrations covering a period of five months, the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's incandescent light on October 21 was a notable event. It was held at Dearborn, Michigan, with Henry Ford as host and President Hoover, Mr. Edison and many other notables as guests.

Among the incidents of the celebration was the reenactment of the scene in which Edison and his assistants, after countless experiments, produced the first incandescent light on October 21, 1879.

At first carbons used in the lamp bulbs were very fragile, being made of paper and common sewing thread. An improved filament made of a strip from a palm-leaf fan led to the adoption of bamboo for the purpose, Japan and other countries being searched for the most suitable kinds. Bamboo was the standard filament material for many years.

The carbon lamp was in general use until the development of the tungsten filament in 1907, which again revolutionized the lighting industry as it was rapidly improved. The tungsten filament is stronger and has a much longer life than the old carbon, besides producing about four and a half times as much light from a given amount of current.

All these developments of half a century have resulted from Edison's original incandescent lamp, although many other inventors have had a part in the progress made. Upon Edison's discovery also has been built the great power and light industry, which now represents an investment of ten billion dollars in the United States.

The celebration of Light's Golden Jubilee was a most fitting tribute to the great inventor, now 82 years of age, and still working in his laboratories, adding to his more than 1,100 inventions which, as Mr. Coolidge has said, "within a single lifetime have changed the conditions under which men live."

STRICTLY UNION

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Any accident involving loss of life or limb is deplorable enough, but none is more deplorable than one in which bright, happy and ambitious school children are killed or maimed through carelessness on the part of those whose duty it is to provide for their protection.

Two unusual accidents in which a total of more than one hundred pupils were injured were reported within two days recently, both being caused by the collapse of portions of school buildings under the weight of the young victims. That no immediate loss of life occurred was most miraculous, although several were so badly hurt that their recovery is uncertain.

If any building in the world should be so constructed as to make its collapse impossible, it is a school building. Every school structure should be rigidly inspected from time to time to insure its safety in this respect. Ample exits for use in case of fire should be invariably provided, and fire drills should be held at regular and frequent intervals. Inflammable materials in school rooms should be reduced to the minimum. School boards have a grave responsibility in all these matters, and they should insist upon the fullest co-operation on the part of principals and teachers. "Save the children" should be their motto and slogan, at all times.

The people of Daly City and Colma are fortunate in having splendidly built school houses, and the school trustees, principals and teachers are doing everything possible to make these places of learning comfortable and safe for the pupils. We are fortunate, indeed, in that respect, and know that all connected with our schools are constantly on the lookout for the welfare and safety of the children of this district.

A 150-YEAR JOB

The government's basic survey of the United States has been in progress seventy years, and at the present rate of progress would require eighty years more, according to an official report.

Believing this pace too slow, President Hoover favors a plan whereby the remaining work may be completed in eighteen years instead of eighty, at a cost of about a million dollars a year.

Adequate maps have never been made of more than one-half of the country, one section which has been neglected being the area affected by Mississippi river floods. Consequently it has been very hard to judge in advance just what territory would be flooded at a given height of water.

Accurate topographical maps, with land elevations of various districts shown, would have made it possible to save 100,000 head of cattle during the 1927 flood, President Hoover declared.

This is only one illustration of the necessity for the survey, and the plan to hasten its completion should receive the earnest attention of Congress.

FARMERS MUST HELP

In order that the new farm marketing act may have a fair trial it is absolutely necessary that the farmers themselves co-operate with the Federal Farm Board and other agencies being set up for the stabilization of marketing conditions.

It is generally conceded that the board is composed of an unusually able body of men, whose integrity is beyond question. They have signified their desire to see strong co-operative marketing organizations formed for the handling of various farm crops, and the logical procedure will be to increase the membership of those already in existence.

Where more than one co-operative group exists in one locality it will be sought to combine them into a single organization. The board has let it be known that it will not aid rival groups handling the same commodity until such combination is effected.

Farmers must form these organizations voluntarily, and those who refuse to join with their neighbors for their mutual benefit will be ineligible to receive any benefits from the new law.

If the effect of the law shall be to cause the farmers to really organize themselves, as other businesses and industries have done, it will undoubtedly go a long way toward solving the agricultural problem.

WOMAN IS PRIZE LIAR

Now comes a new kind of competition—the "biggest liar" contest. Not that competitive lying is new, but it is an innovation to award prizes for high and wide prevarication. At one of these contests held in Collinsville, Ill., recently, the first prize of $20 was won by a woman, and a newspaper woman at that. And newspaper people particularly will appreciate that she was justly entitled to the honor.

The winner, Miss Ernestine C. Smith, of the Columbia Star, told that in all her years of writing obituaries, wedding stories and other social items she had never deviated from the truth in the slightest degree.

If anyone thinks that isn't a whopper, let him tell one.

It is complained that the joint statement by President Hoover and Mr. MacDonald has been misinterpreted. Probably a natural consequence of putting it into English.

A reporter describes a traffic violator as "a former bandit, now driving a taxicab." But why drag in the word "former?"

Mississippi river improvements ought to prevent floods, besides affording a place to hide our fleet during the next war.

A CONVICT COMES BACK

As between the conflicting schools of thought with respect to the treatment of convicted criminals it is hard to judge which is right. One school believes in the "eye for an eye" doctrine, while another would seek to reform the convict through lenient measures.

The truth probably is that there should be no hard and fast rule. Some convicts can be reformed; others can not. Each individual presents a special problem.

But what we started to relate is the case of one John D. Edwards, convicted in Alabama of assault with intent to murder and paroled after serving something over two years of a fifteen year sentence.

Shortly after being paroled, Edwards obtained employment as a life insurance salesman. In thirteen months he sold $1,250,000 in policies. The company considers him its most efficient business producer, and is trying to obtain for him a full pardon. In this effort many citizens of the state have joined.

To an unprejudiced observer it would appear that Edwards has made a remarkable come-back, which should entitle him to be restored to citizenship and a place of usefulness in the world.

HEARST AND SHEARER

According to William Randolph Hearst's own statement, he hired W. B. Shearer to spread propaganda against the World Court. But when he learned that Mr. Shearer had formerly been hired by certain shipbuilders in a similar cause, Mr. Hearst in a spasm of virtue fired Shearer. In other words, while the Hearst newspapers were throwing fits about propaganda, lobbying and so on, they were themselves paying propagandists to organize a movement to defeat World Court legislation.

It may or may not be wise for the United States to enter the World Court, and we are not discussing that point, but the Shearer incident illustrates the inconsistency of many of those who rave about propaganda, while engaged in spreading propaganda themselves.

Brooklyn grocer's clerk supported two wives on $25 a week. Being a grocer's clerk probably simplified the feat.

It was a clever radio announcer who thought up the euphemism "re-cording," meaning a phonograph record.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bandettini will motor to San Jose this Sunday to attend the wedding of Miss Mary Rossi, cousin of Mrs. Bandettini, who will become the bride of Joseph Franco.

The Daly City Theatre has installed the "talkies," and up-to-date sound motion pictures will now be presented at that beautiful new theatre. Next Monday and Tuesday "The Desert Song," one of the real hits of the season, will be presented at the Daly City Theatre under conditions which assure a thorough appreciation of all who attend.

CHILDREN ARE DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED BY TEACHERS

The children of the G. Thornton school were delightfully entertained by their teachers last Thursday, in celebration of Halloween.

In the morning Miss Miller's kindergarten and Mrs. Josephine Johnson's first and second grades held a costume party, starting with a parade through the school and yard, much to the delight of the children. Upon returning to their rooms, a delightful program was given by the children, consisting of songs and recitations, after which games and refreshments were enjoyed.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Margaret P. Brown's second and third grades, and Miss G. Gannon's fourth and fifth grades enjoyed their party. Both classes rendered an impromptu program.

Miss Gannon's class furnished a play by the girls, a jazz band by the boys, accordion solos by Emily Del Sarto and Charles Giesler, and a Spanish song by the class.

Mrs. Brown's class delightfully entertained with a play, "The Black Cat's Whiskers," and two accordion solos by Elmo Lazzarini and Willie Fernando. Several songs were also sung by all the children.

All the class rooms were prettily decorated in black and orange crepe paper, cats, owls, pumpkins and witches, most of the decorations being the work of the school children.

After the afternoon program, the children went to their own class rooms, where delicious refreshments were served to all.

NEGRO CAN'T BE FIRED

The present tendency to refuse employment to men beyond middle age has no terrors for John Hyland, a Harlem negro, who has a life job as "superintendent" of the Empire theater in New York.

John has been an attaché of the Empire so long that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. He was on duty opening doors of carriages for prominent playgoers before John Drew, Maude Adams and Ethel Barrymore became stars.

When limousines took the place of carriages, old John opened limousine doors. Through the years he was the soul of politeness and obliging service. But finally advancing age made it necessary to replace him with a more active man as door opener. And to the credit of a kindhearted manager let it be said that John was not thrown into the discard. On the contrary, he was promoted to the position of "superintendent," with few duties ordinarily, and none at all if he doesn't feel like working.

Furthermore, it was provided that each new lease of the theater contain a clause that John shall retain his job, whether he is able to work or not.

And old John is still as obliging and polite as of yore. To each new manager he explains: "Ah goes wid de lease."

FARM LAND IN DEMAND

Improvement is noted in the demand for farm lands in many sections of the country, according to the presidents of several Federal land banks, who have been attending a conference in Washington.

One of the bankers stated that there is now more interest in farm lands than at any time during the past four or five years. He added that this is a good time to purchase a farm, as valuations are still relatively low, although some strengthening of prices is noted.

There seems to be a belief that agriculture has seen its darkest days, and that improvement from now on will be steady and continuous. This improvement will be all the more certain if the farmers themselves will take advantage of the opportunities for co-operative marketing which are offered with the assistance of the new Federal Farm Board.

If the influences now at work for the betterment of agricultural conditions accomplish this much desired result, it will be of tremendous benefit, not only to the farmers, but to every branch of business and industry.

After having been separated for 61 years, Henry Ruble, of Toledo, and his brother George Ruble, of De Soto, Ill., were united recently when they met by chance in Bloomington, Ill.

A word to the wise. Local business men and merchants, take heed and oil your windows next Thursday, as Halloween is coming, and the youngsters will be busy with their wax.

A new and inexpensive process for imparting a dead white finish to aluminum has been perfected.

COLMA LAD SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Lester Ver Linden, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph E. Ver Linden, passed away at the South San Francisco hospital at the break of dawn on Sunday, October 27, 1929.

On the evening of September 1st while enjoying a picnic on the sands at Mori's Point, a supposedly empty ammonia tank which had been in constant use in preparing coffee and barbecued lunches, exploded, injuring Mrs. Mabel Martinielli, Miss Louise Silicani, Robert Callen, Raymond Silicani, and claiming Lester as its victim.

After fifty-seven days of a valiant attempt to overcome serious injuries, death was caused by pneumonia, due to the result of the accident.

Lester was born at the family home of his parents on Annie street on October 3, 1901, and received his education under the supervision of Professor William J. Savage at the Jefferson School.

As foreman for the Pacific Fruit and Produce Company, he was very popular and well known throughout this vicinity. His popularity was attested by the numerous and beautiful floral offerings.

On Tuesday morning a requiem high mass was celebrated at Holy Angels Church, the Reverend Father John Smyth officiating. The pallbearers were John Garibaldi, Henry Bortis, Herman Lorenz, Angelo Lagomarsino, Harold Varni and Frank Garibaldi. Interment took place at Holy Cross Cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his father and mother, his brothers Edwin and Alden, his sisters Irene, Violet, Fabian, Sibyl and Emma, two loving nephews, Ralph and Donald, of Berkeley, including many relatives and friends.

CENSUS PLANS ARE BEING COMPLETED

The next decennial census of the United States will be taken in April, 1930.

SYNOPSIS

Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch, informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming to the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Canneziano, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife, in the penitentiary. Sam's adopted boy, John, has grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, weak-minded, Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse, Hubert Hand and Chadwick Caulfield are the other members of the household. The girls arrive. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Gabrielle seeks to win John from her sister, and her actions when she receives a letter from France mystify Mrs. Magin. Sam learns Canneziano is soon to be released from the penitentiary. Gabrielle, with Caulfield, goes into the garden. Danielle, from upstairs, calls to her sister. Caulfield comes back alone. In a few minutes Danielle comes into the living room.

"Then you don't deny—" Hubert Hand began Sam, who has enough dauber for John and himself both, when necessary, broke in.

"John doesn't have to deny anything. Marcus will be in the office now, waiting for Twenty-one. Phone down. Phone's handy. Ask him whether he flagged Twenty today, for a passenger, or whether he is going to flag Twenty-one."

Hubert went straight to the telephone. From his end of the conversation, we could tell that Twenty had not stopped, and that no one was waiting for Twenty-one. He looked foolish, when he turned from the telephone, and said, "Take it all back, John. My mistake."

Sam looked, mighty serious. "Well," he drawled, "I don't know but what as good a plan is any would be for us all to go out and have a look around for her—"

"Oh!" Danny exclaimed, sharply. "Uncle Sam, you do think that she has met with some mishap?"

"I think," Sam said, "that she has met with another machine and ridden off in it. But, better safe than sorry; then we'll be fine and fit for the fireworks. Eh, Martha?"

Martha, who had been drowsy all during supper, was half asleep on the davenport, and did not answer.

Sam's first plan, after he and Hubert had made a quick ride to the cabin and back with no sight of Gaby, was for the two of us to go down the road in the sedan. Fortunately, he decided at the last minute to have John come with us to drive. Danny came along with John. Chad and Hubert Hand were to scout around the place on their ponies. Mrs. Ricker stayed at home with Martha.

We drove to the highway before we turned around. We had come back about a mile, when the wind came howling up, blowing the sand and dust in thick clouds, jerking and snapping the sage and the greasewood, chasing and bounding the tumbleweed balls.

One of my principles is, that if you made the ranch before the storm broke, and just as we reached the front porch, the rain came pouring down as if all the sky were the nozzle of a big faucet and someone had turned it on, full force.

"This will bring her in," Sam said, as we ran up the steps. "She'll be there, high and dry, when we get in."

She was not. Chad and Hubert Hand had come in, and they acted as if, since we had set out to get news of Gaby, it was a wonder we had not done it. Martha was sobbing because she could not have the fireworks.

Sam went and touched a match to the fire ready to be started in the fireplace. I ran upstairs and closed the bedroom windows. I had come downstairs, ready to take my rest, when I remembered the attic, with all its windows wide open to the dreaching rain.

My corns had been hurting me all day; so, Chad being handy, I asked him to go and close the attic. He went up the stairs, and almost at once came back to the head of them to call down that the attic door was locked.

John drove fast; but we barely ask a man to do anything about the house for you, you do it twice your self. I thought, again, how true that was, as I went on my aching feet up the stairs to prove to him that the door was not locked, never had been locked, and, likely, never would be.

It was locked. Chad walked off saying that he would see whether some one downstairs had locked it and had the key or, if not, whether he could find another key to fit it.

I stood there waiting. I put my hand in my pocket for my handkerchief. There was a key. It fitted the lock. I opened the door.

About half way up the steps, Gaby was lying in a bundle of pink wrap. I spoke to her. She did not answer. I ran up the steps and put an arm around her, trying to lift her. Her head rolled to one side. I saw her throat. It was saffron color, with great blue black bruises at its base. I touched her swollen face. It was cold.

For an instant, my only sensation was one of violent nausea. I tried to scream. My throat had closed. I must have shut my eyes, for I remember thinking that, if I did not open them, the dizziness would sweep me off into unconsciousness. I opened them. I saw, there on the red carpet of the steps, something that shocked my reeling senses into sanity. Dropped all over the bright headed bag, lying there, were the burned tobacco and the ashes from Sam's pipe.

All of my horror concentrated into a frantic desire to get those ashes cleared away so that no one else could see them. I shook them from the bag to the carpet. I brushed them from the carpet into my handkerchief. Just as I got to my feet from my knees, Chad came up.

"Call the others," I said. "Gaby is here—murdered."

I stuffed the handkerchief filled with ashes into my pocket, and, for the first and last time in my life, I fainted dead away.

The next thing that I knew I was lying on my back listening to someone screaming, above the voices of Sam and Mrs. Ricker. I realized that those awful sounds were coming from my own throat. I tried to stop them; but I could not. I put my hands to my throat to make it stop the noise Sam's voice came, clear and strong then—real, like a light in the dark.

I sat straight up. The screams ceased. "What," I managed, "is the matter?"

"Everything on God's earth, that could be," Sam answered. "But here, Mary. Drink this. Get some sleep. Nothing to be done, now. We'll need you, tomorrow."

He shook a powder into my mouth. Mrs. Ricker held a glass of water to my lips.

When I opened my eyes again, it was gray dawn. I saw that I was in Mrs. Ricker's room. She was sitting by the window taffing. I watched her for a full minute before memory seized me, and I cried out with the pain of it.

"Sh-h-h," she warned me, in a whisper. "You'll wake Martha. She is asleep here on the couch."

I felt in my pocket. The ball of handkerchief was still there. I went into the hall bathroom, washed my face and hands, and drained the last crumb of tobacco down with the water out of the washbowl. I washed the handkerchief, scoured the bowl and went back to Mrs. Ricker's room.

As I opened the door, she again warned me against waking Martha.

"Was the shock too much for her?" I asked, going and standing beside Mrs. Ricker so that we might talk in whispers.

"I didn't allow her to go upstairs. She followed Chad out of the house and saw him shoot himself. He died within ten minutes. It was terrible for Martha. I had to hold her, while Sam gave her a narcotic."

"No, no," I protested. "What—what are you saying? Not Chad? What was it you said about Chad?"

"He walked out and shot himself, through the head."

I rushed out of the room, away from her. I staggered down the stairs into the kitchen.

Sam, Hubert Hand, and John all jumped up from their chairs and started toward me. John reached me first, and put an arm around me.

"Chad—" I began, but I couldn't get any further.

"There, there, Mary. Pour her some coffee, dad. Quick! Here, sit

Chad and Hubert Hand Were to Scout Around the Place on Ponies.

here. Turn on that fan, Hand. Get some water—"

"No, no. Tell me, Mrs. Ricker, said—It isn't true. It can't be true. Not our Chad—"

Sam answered, gruffly, to keep the choke out of his voice. "It is a damn shame, Mary; but, it is true. The boy shot himself, not fifteen minutes after we found her. 'Wait,' he went on quickly, 'before you think anything. I want to tell you what I have told the others. It is God's truth. That poor boy is as innocent of any connection with the murder as I am.'"

"What," I moaned, "are we going to do?"

"We are going to do a lot, Mary," Sam said. "We are going to keep Chad's name clean. Sure." In answer to my protest, "We all know. But, just the same, I'm mighty thankful that I have his alibis for him, my self. A suicide looks bad, you know. That is, it would until we and Canneziano. This is his work—"

"But, Sam," I said, "if he wasn't let out of San Quentin until yesterday morning, he couldn't possibly have got 'way up here that same evening."

"We've told Sam that, a thousand times," Hubert Hand said.

"All right, all right," Sam said. "But if I ever get that long distance call through, you'll find that Canneziano was released a day or two early. She met him yesterday—"

"How'd he get up here, Sam?" I questioned.

"Did you have a passenger up from Rattall, yesterday, John?" Hand asked.

Sam spoke, before John could answer. "Son," he said, "did you, by any chance, as a favor to one of the girls, bring that skunk here yesterday?"

"I did not, dad."

"He got here, then, as I've said all along, Horseback, across the desert. And he murdered the girl. By God—he'll hang for it, if it takes my last dollar. He killed Chad, too, as much as if he'd shot him down. We aren't overlooking a couple of murders, not here on the Desert Moon. Not right yet. She went out to meet him yesterday, I tell you. She brought him into the house, for some purpose; through the back way and up into the attic."

"Without anybody seeing or hearing them?" Hubert Hand questioned.

"Nobody was looking nor listening, as I remember. I tell you, he killed her there on the stairs, and he made his get-away—"

"If you think that," I said. "Why aren't you out hunting him?"

"H—h!" Sam exploded. "Why ain't I out hunting last night's light-ning? The girl had been dead any way two or three hours—more likely longer, when we found her. He had that head start on us. He's gone. He went straight across the desert. He bent for Sunday. He'll need food. He'll need water, worse. I've telegraphed to every town within two hundred miles of here. They are watching. I've phoned every ranch I've kept that phone hot for six solid hours. I've got posse at every water-hole—"

"Listen, Sam," I said. "Unless after he murdered her, he walked downstairs, with none of us seeing or hearing him, and into the living room or the kitchen, and put the key in my pocket, Canneziano is not the guilty man."

The telephone bell rang.

Hubert Hand and John followed Sam into the living room. I stayed where I was. I had to have a minute to think. The ashes on the bag? The key in my pocket? Sam?

If Sam, I thought, had found it necessary to murder Gabrielle Canneziano, he had probably done it to keep something worse from happening. Sickened at myself, for that thought, I found another way of thinking, not much better.

It did seem to me, remembering the pipe ashes on top of the bag, that Sam must have been there on the stairs at some time after she had been murdered and before I had found her. He must, then, be keeping some secret concerning the murder. It did look as if, considering his talk, he must be shielding the murderer, with every ounce of his horse-sense and ingenuity, both of which he had in plenty. But whom would he shield to that extent? Chad, alive or dead? No, Martha? Yes. But Martha could not have done it. John? Not unless there was something to it that none of us dreamed of. Hubert Hand, or Mrs. Ricker? No, Danny? I thought not. Myself? I couldn't be sure.

The men came back into the kitchen. Sam looked ten years older than he had looked ten minutes before.

"It was San Quentin," he said to me. "Canneziano was positively not released from there until nine o'clock yesterday morning."

"That," I said, "lets him out."

"And," Hubert Hand said, "lets every man-jack of us here on the place, in."

Habit was too strong for Sam. "Well in," he quoted, with a groan.

CHAPTER VII

A Confession.

The sheriff, the coroner, the undertaker, a newspaper reporter, and another man that the coroner had brought along for a juryman, drove up to the ranch at five o'clock that morning. Sam and the sheriff had been friends for thirty years. Sam's money had paid for the coroner's medical education. They, and the others, were mighty sorry to have to bother us at all, and their sole aim was to make as little trouble as possible.

They interviewed each one of us, alone, but pleasantly and informally. In the dining room; each one, that is, but Danny—the coroner, visiting her as a doctor, said it would never do to pester her, in the state she was in—and Martha, who was still asleep, and whom they said it was no use to wake. They kept each of us about ten minutes. They brought in the verdict of died by his own hand, for Chad; and, murdered by person or persons unknown for Gaby. They left, on tiptoe, holding their hats in their hands clear to the end of the driveway.

The sheriff left, I am all but certain, with the strong conviction that I had committed the murder, and with the resolution that he would not do Sam an ill turn by depriving him of a good cook. The coroner, and the others, except the reporter, were sure. I think, that one of us was guilty; but were thankful to goodness that they had not found out which one.

The undertaker did not leave with the others. He was preparing the bodies to take them to Telko; there to wait the instructions that we could not give until after we had gotten in touch, if possible, with Chad's people, and had come to a decision about Gaby's burial place.

All the Nevada newspaper accounts made much of the fact that the fiend, who had committed the terrible murder on the Desert Moon ranch, had made a complete escape, without leaving any clues of any sort.

No clues! Lands alive! The place was positively cluttered with clues; and most of them about as useful, in the end, as clutter generally is.

I asked Sam about the contents of Gaby's beaded bag.

"It is all on the table in her room," he said, "where I put it for the coroner's jury. You can go and see. But, first, read this. It was tucked inside her dress. The undertaker found it, and gave it to me. I read giving it to Danny."

He handed me a folded sheet of paper. I opened it, and read:

"Danny dear: If you ever read this, I shall be dead—murdered. Don't have me buried here in this Godforsaken country. Take me to San Francisco and have my body cremated. I love a flame. I hate the cold earth.

"You have had much trouble on my account, old dear. Don't blame me for having kept the fear and the dread of this thing, which I felt certain was going to happen, from you. You, nor no living person, but one, could have saved me.

"Remember, Dan, that in spite of all the distress I have caused you, and may still be causing you, I have always, in my own way, loved you. Gaby."

"Sam," I said, "I knew she was afraid, yesterday. Oh, why didn't she tell us? Of course you men could have saved her. Why did she go out alone to meet that fiend?"

I Hurried to Her and Put My Arms Around Her.

Sam's only answer was a slow shaking of his bowed head, and a deep sigh.

"Mary," he said, then, "will you give this note to Danny, and explain to her how it is?"

"How what is?"

"I mean—Well, she can't leave the Desert Moon, now, to take the body to Frisco. Until we find out who murdered that girl, not a man jack of us is going to leave this place, for any reason. Danny may be as innocent as she seems to be, and—she may not. She, nor anyone else, can leave this place until we have gotten to the very bottom of this thing. That goes, this note, in Gaby's handwriting, clears Danny of the crime, if all the other evidence didn't, which it does. We know that she did not kill her sister. But, of all the people in this house, she is in the best position to know who did it. Of course, if she is involved in this she is involved innocently. If she put the key in your pocket, while we were out in the car, she did it with no idea of what she was doing. Just the same, I want her right here on the Desert Moon, for a while. Mary, you take the note to her, and explain, in your nice way—"

"I'll give her the note, Sam," I said. "But you'll have to do the explaining yourself. I'll tell you why it isn't right for you to try to protect anyone, not even Martha, to the extent of refusing to allow one sister to carry out the dying request of another sister."

Sam dropped his pipe. As I saw the tobacco and the ashes scatter, I was more certain than ever that I was acting as a decent woman should.

The door opened, and Danny came in. She was so pale that her cheeks had sort of a greenish tinge to them. Great dark circles spread far down under her eyes that were red and swollen from crying.

I hurried to her, and put my arms around her. Sam turned away, as if he could not bear to look at us.

I took her into the living room, and sat down in a big chair and held her in my lap.

"If only," she kept saying, "if only she could have left us in her beauty. She was so beautiful, Mary. And now—"

Remembering what I had seen the night before, I knew that I must get her mind into other channels if her reason was to be saved. I thanked my stars, when I remembered the note.

After she had read it, she cried harder than ever; but I knew that it was crying of a sinner sort.

"Will you go with me, Mary?" she questioned, when she had quieted some. "To San Francisco?"

"We'll have to talk to Sam about that, dear," I said. "I am afraid that Sam wants us all to stay here, for a while. Sam thinks that the duty of each one of us, right now, is to stay here and help to find the guilty person."

"Does Uncle Sam think we will find him here?" she questioned.

"There isn't anywhere else to try to find him," I said. "Did you know about the key in my pocket?"

She nodded. "I knew about that," she said.

"What else did you know about?" I asked.

Girl at the Top in Health Test

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Dana Allgire, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her rosy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

CHAPTER I—PART 16

Well, folks, the old ship's been in drydock for some time, but now that her bottom's freshly scraped and her rigging overhauled, we're ready to weigh anchor and resume our voyage over the Redwood highway, and the other highways of California.

After my air trip, I returned to Trinidad, and here I've been ever since, just loafing and enjoying the surrounding country. Seagull, my wire-haired terrier mascot, has been living off the fat of the land, gaining weight and losing all desire to do anything more laborious than basking in the sun.

Directly west of the town of Trinidad, lies Trinidad Head, a bold, rugged-faced bluff extending into the sea and surrounded by myriads of jagged rocks, some extending high above the surface of the water, some partially submerged, are discernible only through the breaking of white-water as the giant combers roll over them. Others, hidden below the surface, remain as dangers to navigation. Far out on the point, apparently hanging from the rocky face, a powerful beacon throws its rays over the sea—a warning to approaching vessels.

Leaving Trinidad, the road winds along the bluffs, now directly above the ocean, now a ways inward, passing through sections of timbered land spotted with the quaint skeletons of shattered trees. The road remains pretty much in the open, finally winding down through a valley of birch and aspens, and then climbing over a slight rise to once more descend a long easy grade before suddenly emerging on the shore of Big Lagoon, a large quiet body of half salt, half fresh water over which we pass on a mile long trestle. The greater portion of the shore line of the Lagoon is solidly lined with tulle grass and cat-tails, among which herds of wild ducks find refuge.

Just north of Big Lagoon are two smaller bodies of water, Stone and Freshwater Lagoons. At some points the road winds close to the water's edge, in others it climbs high along the bluff, allowing occasional glimpses through the trees of the quiet surface of the inland waters beyond which, on the far side of a bar of glistening white sand, the giant breakers may be clearly seen.

At Orick, we cross Redwood Creek and enter the Russ Grove of giant redwoods. Perhaps the most beautiful scenery of the whole trip through the Redwood Empire is to be found in the stretch between Orick and Crescent City. At times, as at present, we are deep in the heart of a primeval forest, so dense that our only vision of the daylight above is the slanting paths of sunlight which filter through small openings in the almost solid canopy of branches overhead. Cool on the hottest day, dark, while outside the sun is still shining, one could not imagine a more restful atmosphere.

And interspersing the groves are stretches of open country where the road winds along the bluffs, high and steep above the ocean shoreline which here and there consists of short spans of sandy beach, over which the waves race inland, while here and there are areas of jagged, jumbled rocks around which the giant waves surge and spume with a relentless fury that has been going on through the ages. At points the road leads inland along the banks of steep canyon, seeking a means of crossing the sparkling stream that breaks its way through the hills to the ocean. At other places the bold-faced bluffs tower above us as we follow their contour on the ocean beach.

At Requa, or rather a short distance above that town, we cross the new memorial bridge over the Klamath river. This river is supposedly the second best steel-head stream in the country, being only exceeded in that reputation by the famous Rogue river in Southern Oregon.

From this point the road traverses more beautiful redwood groves, and winds along more bold headlands, until it finally leads down to a stretch of sand beach on into Crescent City.

FIGHT ARSON

Incendiarism is one of the most cowardly and despicable of crimes. A summer season has closed during which untold damage in lives and property was done by the arsonist. In the West great forests of invaluable timber have been burned over by fires purposely started. And throughout the nation fires set in order to get insurance, or for revenge, or because of pyromania are common.

The public has been strangely apathetic in its attitude toward arson. In spite of the efforts of fire prevention organizations, at has, from a practical standpoint, failed to co-operate in fighting these criminals. It fails to understand that incendiarism is a constant menace to the life and property of all of us.

An active fight against incendiarism would be of major importance in the general campaign to reduce fire waste.

A Baltimore negro shoots up his mother-in-law's picture and is fined $8.80. Pathfinder supposes the 80 cents was amusement tax.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

The value of the services of volunteer wardens has again demonstrated itself.

Deputy Ray Ottoboni, of Colma, discovered R. Ratto on Sunday, October 20, killing rabbits out of season in the vicinity of Colma, and together with Deputy State Warden Joy arrested him.

Three days afterwards Judge Farrell had the case before his court and inflicted a fine of $100 and thirty days in jail.

The jail sentence was revoked in lieu of six months probation, but the fine was paid.

The judge delivered a serious lecture to the defendant and announced that infractions of the game law would be dealt with severely in his court, all of which the judge is to be highly commended for.

It will be well for the public to learn that judges do not intend the fish and game laws to be trifled with, and that state wardens, deputy wardens and judges are acting in close co-operation to put an end to these violations.

A three-point buck was killed by an automobile on the Skyline boulevard on Sunday and was turned over to Warden Joy, who in turn sent it to the county farm for consumption.

Later a doe was killed in the same manner and in the same vicinity and turned over to Warden Joy by a Spring Valley employee, which is now in a cooler awaiting the call of the county farm culinary department.

District No. 7 of the Associated Sportsmen, of which the San Mateo County Fish and Game Protective Association is a member, held its monthly meeting recently at Berkeley, and among other business was a subject of unusual importance.

It involved the question of the right of search of hunters by a warden after refusal to show game on demand.

It appeared that Sheriff Becker of Alameda, Deputy Sheriff Rosenburger of Alameda, and State Senator Inman of Sacramento, were arrested for refusing to show game in their possession.

The action of the judge in imposing a fine was an endorsement of the warden making the arrest.

The defendants appealed the case for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the law, and the case is to be determined by a higher court.

How singular that a law-maker such as Senator Inman is, should be the first to appeal against the operation of a law passed by his own chamber.

The meeting very properly passed a resolution condemning the defendants and authorized the sending of copies of the resolution to each one.

It was pointed out at the meeting that if the trio could nullify the law through this test case in the courts, conservation would receive a death blow, and our already diminishing supply of fish and game be left a prey for every attack.

It is to be hoped in the interests of conservation and good government generally that the law will be sustained.

"SALES APPEAL" AND SAFETY

In the last two or three years a new factor has entered into the "sales appeal" for automobiles—Safety.

This is a logical trend. As traffic congestion grows and the accident danger increases, the motorist becomes concerned with the strength and sturdiness of the automobile he drives.

There have been major steps taken in automobile construction in recent years. Better brakes, non-shatterable glass, lower center of gravity have become standard. The all-steel body is an outstanding feature of motor car safety.

Safety in all things is our modern watchword. And nowhere has safety progress been more pronounced than in the automobile.

DON'T BURN YOUR FINGERS

Discussing the matter of investing funds in securities, the Denver Mining Record, Denver, Colorado, says:

"Get the facts before you buy and base your judgment upon these facts. Get the facts and you will be able to make proper selection. The laws today make it possible for the investor to secure facts upon which to base his judgment."

Growth of modern stock exchanges has undoubtedly been responsible for making facts available to the public, which would otherwise be unobtainable except to the privileged few. Seek advice from reputable sources and don't burn your fingers.

Being a Scotchman, Mr. MacDonald doubtless favors freedom of the seas.

CLEANUP DRIVE ON GLARING LIGHTS

A "cleanup" drive against the glaring headlight evil was ordered last week by Eugene W. Biscailuz, superintendent of the California Highway Patrol.

The drive, which is state-wide in character, began last Monday, October 2, and will close on Friday, November 8. Biscailuz said it was a final effort to drive dazzling lights off the roads before the winter rains set in.

A force of 235 state patrolmen, captains and inspectors, will be at work on the roads every night during the period.

They will be supplemented by several hundred policemen representing various municipalities, sheriffs, and sheriff's deputies, and other peace officers, the co-operation of these bodies having been pledged in the drive.

All officers are expected to work every night on headlights during the drive, Biscailuz said.

The patrol has been engaged in headlight enforcement work all of the past month, the first fifteen days having been devoted to educational work among the motorists.

During this period warnings only were issued. This policy has now been abandoned for sterner measures. Persons caught with glaring lights are required to appear in court within five days and exhibit evidence that their lights have been adjusted.

Biscailuz said warrants would be issued immediately for the arrest of all who fail to appear within the five-day period.

The Division of Motor Vehicles will not renew the operator's card and registration license of any person who fails to appear within fifteen days, in compliance with a section of the new motor vehicle act, until the case is disposed of by the court and notification sent to the division by the court.

"We are going to try to make it a 'finish' fight this time," Biscailuz declared.

In China husbands and wives very seldom see each other before marriage. In America some seldom see each other afterward.

HEADLIGHT DRIVE HALTS MANY AUTOS

Approximately 200 motorists with glaring or defective headlights on their automobiles were cited during the past two nights by members of the state highway patrol operating in this county.

Monday night was the beginning of a 12-day war on glaring headlights. For ten more nights the officers will cite violators of this traffic rule. They will be given citations, and if they do not appear in court within twelve days, steps will be taken by the division of motor vehicles to cancel their driver's licenses and certificates.

The battle against glaring headlights is not confined to San Mateo county alone. It is state-wide.

In the game of auto vs. locomotive many forward passes are incomplete.
